On last Wednesday night as Emile Gladieux was returning home between the hours of 3 and 4, he met a man going south with a large bundle of hay upon his back. As our farmers are not in the habit of marketing their hay at that hour of the night the question naturally arises, where did he get the hay and who was he? The night being very light Emile got a fair glimpae of the hay man, although he made a desperate effort to draw himself into the bundle, which he had on his back. It is our opinion the fellow will make one trip too many and will land at the hotel of which Charley Krider is landlord.
